TREVERS AT WORK.—Testerday siternoon some unknown parties entered the residence of Arthor Little, Eaq., on 16th street, during the absence of Mr. Little and his family, and rassacked the house from garret to cellar for valuables. A pocketbook containing £14, and several articles of jevelry, have been missed, but as a thorough examination has not yet been made it is impossible to say exactly what articles may have been taken. The robbery is supposed to have been committed by a number of boys, who were noticed hanging suspiciously about the premises on Tuesday. The lodder, or presidents and other officers, was described to the premise on Tuesday. The lodder, or Presidents and other officers, and fletwards raising a window with the same instrument. Norming Leem Ir.—There is nothing like being a bloated autocrat of the sanctum, while next door one hears the poor laboring man toiling with his cue in a billiard room. The editor toils not, and neither does he spin, and yet Mrs. Jenks in all her glory is not arrayed like one of these. While all humanity is sweltering and swearing—and wondering where they can hang up the barkeeper for a glass of beer—the editor has nothing to do. Two or three columns of "local" or "editorial" to write, two or three hundred exchanges to read through, and as many bores to bounce, questions to answer where arudite information is demanded, letters to answer, "proofs" to scan, manuscripts to read, until one cannot tell English from Sanscrit—this is a mere bagatelle, when the thermometer is on the ragged edge of the niceties. Editors heartily despise men who work for a living, and listen with sardonic satisfaction to the sounds from the billiard room just across the alley, where the 'poor man slaves and sweats. It makes such a contrast to their luxurious idleness. NOTHING LIKE IT .- There is nothing

The old "Litten Duster" appears to have a variety of names. He paid Holliday's Cove a visit, and upon inquiring of the first lady he met if there were any widows in the Cove, he was informed that Mrs. Lyons was one. He saked a great many questions in regard to her. After learning that she had a brother in California that she had not heard from for twenty years, he want to see her and claimed that he was the brother's brother-in-law of the same name, Farnsworth, and that he had quite a fortune for her. Also $500 for Miss Mahala Beyan, from California. But after getting his boarding for a few days the Wellsburgers took charge of him, and the fortunes are still in his hands.
